Performers from Rio Carnival groups will be joining local talent at the One Hackney Festival parade on 21 July, to mark the arrival of the Olympic torch to the borough

RHYTHM OF RIO

ALL eyes will be on the borough when performers from the Rio Carnival join groups from Hackney and the rest of the UK in the One Hackney Festival parade – the borough's biggest ever street celebration to mark the arrival of the Olympic torch on 21 July.

Hackney groups preparing costumes, dance and music for the parade will also receive master classes from Rio artists such as Fundação Progresso in Lapa, and the leading Brazilian disabled carnival group Embaixadores da Alegria. The groups will work together to create a 2,000-strong parade which will tell the story of Hackney as it travels from Shoreditch Park to Clissold Park for a massive welcome for the torch.

These, and other Brazilian elements, will form part of the London 2012 Festival, a 12-week cultural collaboration running from 21 June to 9 September.

Announcing the project in Rio, Sebastian Coe, Chair of the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG), said: "People around the UK, in Brazil and right across the world will be able to enjoy the brilliance of these artists' work during the London 2012 Festival in the build up to Rio 2016 and beyond."

The One Hackney Festival will incorporate not only the street parade, but a festival fringe involving music, dance and food in the borough, and an all day event in Clissold Park.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "21 July is going to be a fantastic day of celebration in Hackney and we want as many residents as possible to take part. Whether it's joining in the parade, coming to watch it and the Olympic flame go by, or enjoying the many activities taking place, I'd urge everyone to get involved."

In addition to its partnership with Hackney, the London 2012 Rio collaboration involves many of London's leading venues.

The Council is working with Keith Khan Associates to organise the festival. Anyone who wants to be part of the parade can find out more and apply by visiting the One Hackney Festival webpage at: www.hackney.gov.uk/one-festival and following the facebook link; or by emailing: Olympics@hackney.gov.uk

Swimathon

Swimmers representing the six host boroughs compete at the Aquatics Centre

SOME 39 residents, aged between nine and 55, competed in the six host borough swimming championship at the Olympics Aquatics Centre.

In total 300 people from the six host Olympic boroughs took part at the event on 18 March, representing 13 clubs from Hackney, Newham, Tower Hamlets, Greenwich, Waltham Forest and Barking and Dagenham.

Over 1,000 spectators watched swimmers compete in freestyle relay, medley relay, backstroke, breaststroke and disability events.

Swimming captain James Kinch, 15, from Clissold Swim Club, said: "The event was inspiring for myself and other swimmers representing Hackney. It offered a great opportunity to swim in the Olympic pool and provided a taster of what it is like to be an elite athlete. I am looking forward to 2012 – it will be the best Olympics ever!"

The event, organised by the Olympic Park Legacy Company (OPLC)* and GLL, which runs the borough's leisure centres, gave residents the opportunity to use the main 50 metre pool before the Olympic athletes will do so in the summer.

The championship, opened by Great Britain medal hopeful and world record holder for 50m backstroke Liam Tancock, was a taste of what is to come for the Aquatics Centre after the Games – when the venue will turn into a community facility.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health Social Care and Culture, said: "Well done to everyone in Hackney's team who can now say they competed in the first community event at the Aquatics Centre. After the Games, it is set to be a fantastic community venue that I hope inspires people – young and old – to take up swimming."

GLL managing director Mark Sesnan added: "This is the first of what we hope will be many opportunities for local people to use and enjoy the 2012 Olympic facilities. Not only is this a world-class venue designed to host international sport, it also aims to nurture sporting talent at grass roots level and encourage healthy living.

"As the legacy operator of the Aquatic Centre, GLL, working with the OPLC, is committed to increasing sports participation through events like this after this summer's Olympic Games."

The championship also featured a performance by the Great Britain junior synchronised swimming team and closed with a routine by the senior team.

*The Olympic Park Legacy Company (OPLC) is being transformed into the London Legacy Development Corporation.

"The event was inspiring for myself and other swimmers. I am looking forward to 2012, it will be the best Olympics ever"

Phillips Idowu thrilled students at his old school, De Beauvoir Primary, where he was interviewed by the school's primary ambassadors

Jumping for joy

FORMER world champion triple jumper and London 2012 gold medal hopeful Phillips Idowu thrilled students at his old school, De Beauvoir Primary, when he paid them a visit on Sport Relief Day last month.

Towering over his young competitors, the 6'5" Hackney-born athlete challenged pupils to beat him in a sprint, and scored a couple of baskets, before joining the school in assembly.

He was later interviewed by the school's primary ambassadors, Francis Asare and Tenisha Tempao, for their school magazine.

Francis said: "It was very inspiring,

"It was very inspiring, we have never had someone who used to come to our school and is the best in the world speak to us" the best in the world speak to us and shake my hand. That's an honour."

Hackney has 102 primary school ambassadors – a boy and a girl from each school who represent young people in the borough at important events, and will be working to inspire fellow pupils in the lead up to the London 2012 Games. They receive training and take part in exciting projects and visits and meet high profile personalities.

Together with other celebrities, including musicians Plan B and Leona Lewis and DJ Trevor Nelson, Phillips is a BBC Radio 1's Hackney Weekend 2012 ambassador – helping to inspire young people to become involved in the activities leading up to the June festival.

Enjoying his morning at the school, Phillips said: "I'm proud to be involved in BBC Radio 1's Hackney Weekend. It's brilliant that Radio 1 are doing this for the young people of the borough".

Half the 100,000 tickets at the Hackney Marshes event – headlined by Jay-Z and Rihanna – have been reserved for residents. Hackney residents who have registered for tickets can still claim them at www.bbc.co.uk/radio1 until 4pm on Monday, 9 April.

Boroughs to trial 20mph limit

FOLLOWING Hackney's introduction of a 20mph speed limit on all residential roads in the borough, the Council has now reached agreement with Islington to introduce an experimental 20mph speed limit on boundary roads shared by the two boroughs. Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said:

"Hackney and Islington are keen to reduce speed on our major roads to make them safer for all users, particularly pedestrians and cyclists.

"Residents and businesses along affected routes will be consulted about how the lower speed limit is introduced.

The effect of the lower limits will be monitored and reviewed after they have been in place for a year."

Track works to affect residents

MORE than six miles of railway track is to be replaced between Cambridge Heath, London Fields, Hackney Downs and Clapton, which will affect residents living in the area. The scheme is vital to replace life-expired track and to improve train performance for passengers.

The work, to be carried out by Network Rail, will start at Easter and is set to be completed by the beginning of July – ahead of the Olympic and Paralympic Games. Works will start on Saturday 7 April and will take place over several weekends, with some work being carried out overnight. Andy Bottom, general manager at Network Rail, said:

"This investment will deliver significant long-term benefits for thousands of passengers. We appreciate that some people will be inconvenienced, but we hope that people will understand how important it is to make an investment in this busy route."

For more information, visit: www.greateranglia.co.uk; or www.nationalrail.co.uk; or call: Network Rail on: 084 5711 4141.

It's party time in Hackney!

This year is a cause for many celebrations in the borough, with the Queen's Jubilee in June, and the Olympic and Paralympic Games running from July 27 to 9 September. The Council is making it easy for residents to host their own street parties, for fewer than 200 guests, by launching a new guide on its website containing all the advice you need, as well as a free road closure application form. Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "Street parties provide a great opportunity for neighbourhoods to come together. We encourage these events and want to make it as easy as possible for our residents to organise and enjoy such celebrations." Guidelines are also available for those wanting to host a large – more than 200 guests – or commercial event in the borough. For more info, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/street-parties

Councillors, volunteers and members of the London Fields User Group mucked in with planting an orchard and sowing a meadow in two Hackney parks

Reap what you sow

TWO of the Council's parks have received a fruitful makeover thanks to the hard work of local volunteers.

London Fields now has a community orchard with fruit trees, and Daubeney Fields has a new meadow.

The Council, members of the London Fields User Group and volunteers planted the community orchard in London Fields and volunteers dusted off their hoes for the meadow planting at Daubeney Fields.

Both parks contribute to targets set out in the Hackney Biodiversity Action Plan 2012 to 2017. The plan acknowledges that orchards are valuable for a range of wildlife, including insects and birds.

The trees planted in the orchard are all traditional fruit varieties. The species include Morello, May Duke

“ This is great way for residents to connect with where their food comes from and get involved in the benefits of local growing ” and Cherokee cherries; Greengage; Merryweather damson; and Newton Wonder, James Grieve and Queen Cox apple trees.

Mike Martin, chair of the London Fields User Group, said: “A great day was had by all – a community orchard in London Fields is something that will really help the biodiversity of the park.”

The Group

received a £1,000 grant from Team London for enhancements in the park, which was used to pay for the trees, stakes and guards.

In the autumn, the Council will carry out further work including the creation of wildflower meadows, works to the woodland area, shrub and native bulb planting.

The Council is also running the ‘Daubeney Fields Goes Wild!’ project with ecoACTIVE. It is hoped the project will encourage local communities to get more involved in their local park.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, who took part in the planting, said: “The Council is committed to improving and enhancing its parks and green spaces through initiatives like the community orchard and meadow planting.

“I hope local people will get involved with harvesting the fruits in the future as this is great way for Hackney’s residents to connect with where their food comes from and get involved with the benefits of local growing.”

Bearing the torch

A STUDENT with learning disabilities, a sports mentor and youth parliament member are among residents set to carry the Olympic torch this summer.

The relay will see 8,000 bearers take the flame on a 70-day journey around the country – giving some of the nation's most inspirational people their time to shine.

Hackney Community College student Alpha

“Once I receive the torch and start running, I'm going to be filled with adrenaline”

Kamara developed learning difficulties due to an illness during his childhood. Determined to show his disability has not held him back, the 18-year-old endeavours to carry out his tasks unsupported.

Teachers praised his positive attitude, enthusiasm and awareness of healthy living. In June 2011 he won a 100m gold medal at the London Youth Games.

Alpha said: “I am very excited and happy and can't stop smiling. It will be great fun. I am also looking forward to watching the Olympics, especially the athletics.”

Wilton Estate resident Takashi Bailey, who won the 2011 Hackney Sports Award for voluntary services to sport and physical activity, helped develop the Wilton Estate youth club and remains a role model to young people on his estate. He said: “I am grateful for this opportunity and look forward to this new experience.”

Haggerston student and youth parliament member, Christiana Egere, won London 2012 sponsor Freshfields's Olympic contest, giving her a coveted spot. She said: “Once I receive the torch and start running, I'm going to be filled with adrenaline. It's a real privilege to represent the school and Hackney.”

Vicki Carter was one of the first residents named to carry the torch. The King's Hall swimming coach called the selection ‘an honour.’

The relay begins its nationwide journey at Land's End on 19 May. Twenty-one people will take the torch through the borough from Shoreditch High Street on 21 July, before being passed to Waltham Forest. It will arrive at the Olympic Stadium on 27 July.

A festival for all creatives

THE twelve latest commissions for a London 2012 culture festival that engages with people across East London have been announced.

Award winning artists and performers will produce new works for CREATE2012 – bringing art out of traditional spaces and into East London's parks, playgrounds and tucked-away spots.

Among the announcements are immersive theatre company You Me Bum Bum Train, that will put local people in starring roles; Jeremy Deller's public artwork ‘Sacrilege’, that will appear at different East London locations; Frieze Foundation, which will produce a series of new art projects in parks and public spaces; and Ms Dynamite, N-Dubz producer Fazer and other urban scene stars who will perform in an open-air Walthamstow concert with the BBC Symphony Orchestra. Since 2008, CREATE has delivered art projects to showcase emerging artists and established international figures. CREATE2012 takes place from 21 June to 21 July.

Remember to register to vote

RESIDENTS need to register by 18 April to vote for the next Mayor of London.

The Greater London Authority (GLA) elections take place on 3 May to choose the London Mayor and 25 London Assembly members. Candidates have responsibility for services and aspects of daily life across the capital – from the underground, local bus services, and policing, to green spaces and air quality.

Being registered with the Council for services such as Council Tax will not include you on the electoral register.

World nappy changing event

PARENTS and their babies are being invited to take part in a world record attempt while promoting eco-friendly nappies. Babies all over the world will be whisked into reusable nappies simultaneously for The Great Nappy Challenge. Hackney's attempt takes place in The Round Chapel, with an official from the Guinness Book of Records overseeing the event. Long term, reusable nappies are cheaper than disposables while around six per cent of Hackney waste comes from throwaway nappies.

The Great Nappy Change will take place at The Round Chapel on Lower Clapton Road, 4.30 to 6.30pm on 21 April. Parents can book their place at: www.thegreatnappychangehackney.eventbrite.com

Celebrating positive role models

THE borough's great and the good were honoured by the Speaker of Hackney with an awards ceremony at Stoke Newington Town Hall on 22 March.

As she approaches her final stage in office as Speaker, Cllr Susan Fajana-Thomas felt it would be fitting to officially recognise the work being done by members of the local community and combine it with a cultural event celebrating Hackney's diverse communities.

There were three awards given out on the night: the award for the soldier of the year, voted for by 3 Military Intelligence Territorial Army unit, was given to Lance Corporal Edward Sonnex for his outstanding work both in the UK and overseas.

He made such an impression on his first tour in Afghanistan in 2009/10 that he was specifically asked to do another deployment.

“ My role has allowed me to gain an insight into the brilliant work being done in the borough and I wanted to celebrate that ”

Trust – was given to Queensbridge Primary School for delivering outstanding educational opportunities for its pupils.

Finally, the award for contribution to community building, as voted for by members of Team Hackney, was awarded to Father Rob Wickham for his tireless work in the community including helping to organise the Clarence Road Community Tea Party.

Entertainment on the night was a colourful and varied programme of dance, cheerleading, martial arts, orchestral and choral performances and the spoken word – all performed by local organisations.

Cllr Fajana-Thomas said: “My role as Speaker has allowed me to gain a real insight into the brilliant work being done by individuals and organisations in the borough's communities and I wanted to celebrate that with this event.

“Well done to everyone who was nominated in each of the award categories and my special praise goes to the winners, who deserve to be shown as positive examples to everyone.”

Breaking barriers

Hackney produced 'Shadowball' engaged borough pupils about sport, music and racial divides

IN 1920, a hugely successful breakaway competition, the 'National Negro League', was set up in response to Major League baseball's 30-year unwritten rule to ban black players. Another 30 years later the first black baseball player broke the colour barrier to play for the renowned Brooklyn Dodgers. Hackney Music Development Trust's (HMDT) jazz opera, 'Shadowball', tells the story.

Featuring 200 pupils from Gayhurst and Millfields primary schools, HMDT's one-off show follows the lives of the main protagonists: the white Major League owners and the black Negro League businessmen, coaches and eminent players.

The show, written by pianist and BBC radio presenter Julian Joseph, stars Hackney-born singer Cleveland Watkiss. According to charity HMDT creative director Tertia Sefton Green, 'Shadowball' was created as a way to teach issues of prejudice that are still relevant today.

She said: "Children don't always know about segregation as they hadn't lived through it. There's also a link between black jazz and baseball players – both were successful but weren't allowed to attend or stay at many venues."

In fact for a time jazz and baseball were intertwined: trumpeter Louis Armstrong owned a Negro League team, singer Cab Calloway played on one and dancer Bill 'Bojangles' Robinson used to tap dance on a dugout roof.

HMDT – which creates music programme with Hackney schools to develop music education in the borough – went into the two primary schools for the project, giving year five pupils the lead parts and only four weeks to prepare.

Tertia said: "One of the challenges was to turn the 200 into a team. It was complex musically but the students rose to the occasion. They really took ownership and had fun with it. There aren't many jazz operas, which have all the dialogue sung, but it really swung along with a 1940s feel with touches of Louis Armstrong and Duke Ellington."

As well as performing in front of a 700-strong audience on 15 March, pupils also had segregation themes woven into their lesson plans. The US Embassy provided some funding, while BaseballSoftball UK gave baseball lessons to students.

Cleveland Watkiss, who played pitcher Satchel Paige – one of three players who wanted to be the first to cross the colour barrier, said: "Shadowball" encapsulates beautifully all that's necessary for understanding the past with optimism for the future."

Writer Julian Joseph added: "The energy and excitement of the children was absolutely infectious and resonated through Hackney Empire. The transformative power of the drama, music and those involved just reinforces my admiration for HMDT. Here's to more!" 'Shadowball' was conceived by HMDT director Adam Eisenberg.

Students learn jazz opera, play baseball and learn about extraordinary men who played in the Negro Leagues. "It is more than performing arts. We got a letter from a parent that said the children felt valued by the project and it raised the confidence within themselves," says Adam.

HMDT is to take 'Shadowball' to Sheffield, Manchester and Birmingham to continue the project with schools local to each city's area.

A cupboard full of ideas

Yvette Edwards, author of 'A Cupboard Full of Coats', drew on her Hackney/Montserrat upbringing for her debut novel, which was longlisted for the 2011 Man Booker Prize

WHAT'S it like putting your work, with all its intimate aspects and introspection, up for critical consumption?

"It's probably the psychological equivalent of stripping off your clothes and running around naked," answers Yvette Edwards, author of 'A Cupboard Full of Coats'.

And yet the Hackney-proud writer who 'died a thousand deaths' each time anyone read her first draft had little to worry about: the acclaimed debut novel was placed on the 2011 Man Booker Prize longlist, turning her from part-time housing worker to a rising literary star.

The book follows a woman riddled with guilt over the brutal death of her mother. Years later, an old family friend returns to revisit events that led up to the murderous night.

It was inspired by a friend of Yvette's who herself managed to escape a violent relationship. The friend was lucky: her former partner tragically killed his subsequent girlfriend. "For me it was mind-blowing. There were so many possibilities that played out in my head for years – if she didn't leave him, would she have been the person I had read about?" she muses.

The ex had a close friend, triggering Yvette to question how two such opposites could be so close. This became a key theme of the book.

'A Cupboard Full of Coats' also shows a window into Montserrat life and being a child of a West Indian parent. "The mantra is 'write what you know'. I grew up in Hackney and have a Montserrat background; I hadn't read that much about second-generation Caribbean people in London. But the issues in the book don't just explore the Afro-Caribbean experience, I just used my background to make characters more authentic," she says.

“Being on the Booker Prize longlist was an enormous honour; I was completely overjoyed but also terrified”

Despite being a lifelong avid reader and 'pretty much living in Hackney libraries', she began building her prose in quite an unusual way. "When I was young I had a lisp – there were all sorts of words and sounds I'd avoid, like 'Ths' and soft 'Gs'. So I made a thesaurus in my mind of words to replace them with.

"I meandered through life, never fully committing to a career. But I did take up short writing courses – I was the short course queen! I would practise, practise, practise, with part of me always thinking 'any moment now I'm going to be a novelist'.

"Then on my 39th birthday, it was as if I'd discovered I wasn't immortal, so I gave myself a choice: either write and see it through or give it all up to commit to my job."

Fortunately for book-lovers, Yvette chose writing. Her Man Booker Prize nomination, which gives awards each year for the best original full-length novel written in English, gave her the confidence boost she needed.

"Being on the Booker Prize longlist was an enormous honour; I was completely overjoyed but also terrified. Just having my book published put me in a state of shock.

Now looking back it was the best thing that could have happened to me as it put me on the literary radar. Lots of people have enjoyed the book and that sustains me as a writer," Yvette says.

She names Toni Morrison and Joanne Harris among the authors that most influenced her. "I'm sure every book I've read has shaped and changed me. Reading a book is like going on a journey, and every journey changes us, even if we don't recognise it. So hats off to all writers I say," she adds, confidently and skin thickly intact.

'A Cupboard Full of Coats', published by Oneworld Publications, is out now. RRP £8.99.

THE GREEN GENIE

All your green questions answered

Q: I heard that bees are very important to the environment but their numbers are dropping. What can I do to help them out?

A: Bees are very important as they help to pollinate plants and flowers which help us to grow food. Some bees also produce honey which we can eat. Across London there are more than 3,000 urban bee colonies. There are schemes such as Capital Bee (www.capitalgrowth.org/bees) which look to train people in beekeeping and can help groups to set up their own beehives or apiaries.

The simplest way of helping is to plant bee-friendly plants such as honeysuckle or lavender if you've the space, or even fruit and veg in a window box if space is limited. Also, avoid using pesticides as these can be harmful to bees.

If you want more information or to get involved in a group to help out our bees visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/bees-and-beekeeping

Hackney has pledged its support for a national campaign to bin chewing gum ahead of the Olympic and Paralympic Games

Borough bins gum

A CAMPAIGN to encourage residents to bin their chewing gum has been launched following research showing one in two people living in the capital admit to dropping litter.

The survey, by the Chewing Gum Action Group, also discovered that over a third of people don't think the capital is clean.

Hackney is one of 15 nationwide Olympic host councils to have pledged its support for the campaign to help make Britain's streets free of littered gum.

The 'Do your country proud... bin your gum' advertising campaign will run this month in the borough, and calls on everyone to play their part in creating a cleaner Britain by putting gum in a bin.

The campaign is part of the Council's wider efforts to ensure the borough is kept clean all year round.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "It costs on average £1 to remove each piece of gum and could cost more than £26,000 just to clear Mare Street, Amhurst Road and Old Street. This money could be better spent elsewhere in the borough and we need people's help to keep our streets clean and free from gum."

The campaign is funded by the Chewing Gum Action Group which is a joint initiative between the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra), the chewing gum industry and Chartered Institution of Wastes Management.

Theatre set to become carbon neutral

ARCOLA Theatre in Dalston has been awarded a £16,500 cash boost to help it become the first carbon neutral theatre in the country.

The grant, from EDF Energy Green Fund, will help fund the installation of 24 square metres of solar panels, saving the theatre both energy and money, while reducing its carbon emissions.

Dr Ben Todd, executive director at the E8 theatre, said: "We're delighted that the EDF Energy Green Fund is able to help make this exciting project a reality.

"The £16,500 is a great help in creating this low carbon solution. The theatre is at the heart of Hackney and we want to create an environment to foster creativity as well as promote sustainability."

Arcola Theatre aims to become a leader of sustainability in the arts. Its objectives are to become the world's first carbon neutral theatre; educate and inspire the local community to live sustainably; and to integrate sustainability into the core ethos of arts and community venues.

The EDF Energy Green Fund supports renewable energy projects that produce power from the sun, wind, water and geothermal sources to reduce greenhouse gases linked to global warming.

Riot clean-up team recognised

THE Council's evening and night shift cleaning crews have narrowly missed out on a national award for going beyond the call of duty during last summer's riots.

On 8 and 9 August last year, Council clean-up crews worked around the clock with the police and fire services to restore Hackney to normality, after riots that swept Britain.

In recognition of their efforts, the team was shortlisted for a prestigious

Keep Britain Tidy award.

The award nomination made mention of comments on Twitter with the #riotcleanup hashtag, which noted when volunteers arrived to clean the streets of Hackney most of the work had already been done.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Our crews worked tirelessly in exceptional conditions to restore the streets to some sense of order. It's a great testament to how hard they worked that members of the public could see little evidence of the disorder that took place as they made their way to work the next day."

Representatives were invited to a ceremony at Aston Villa Football Club in Birmingham, but just lost out on the 'Crew of the Year' prize.

Phil Barton, chief executive of Keep Britain Tidy, said: "The Hackney night shift and evening crew were worthy finalists of what was an exceptionally strong category. They have shown outstanding commitment, going beyond the normal call of duty."

"A key aim of the Keep Britain Tidy Network is for residents, land managers and other organisations to work together to improve the quality of neighbourhoods and this team have led by example to show what can be achieved."

The Council's evening cleaning crews were praised at national awards

News in brief

Sustainable website launched

ENVIRONMENTAL campaign group Sustainable Hackney has a new website featuring green maps of activities in the borough and social network links.

The site brings together various community groups and projects in one place and offers the opportunity to discuss ecological and sustainability issues.

Russell Miller, chair of Sustainable Hackney, said: "Our aim is to draw closer together the huge number of people in the borough with skills and interest in the environment to make our action for change more effective."

"We need to go far faster and further to make things sustainable locally and make Hackney's contribution to solving the global environment crises."

Sustainable Hackney formed after a merger between the Hackney Environment Forum and the Hackney Environment Network.

The group will host its first AGM on Wednesday 25 April. For more information, visit: www.sustainablehackney.org.uk

The Master & Margarita

Until 7 April, Barbican, Silk Street, EC2Y 8DS

WHEN Russian author Mikhail Bulgakov began writing his critique of the Soviet society and literary establishment in 1920s Russia, he may not have expected that the work would be packing out London's premiere theatres almost 100 years later. But the Barbican's fast selling-out season of Bulgakov's novel 'The Master and Margarita', adapted for stage by acclaimed British theatre company 'Complicite', is testament to the endurance and universality of his cult masterpiece.

Featuring characters from Pontius Pilate to tortured poets, Soviet bureaucrats and a walking, talking, substance-abusing cat, the work is surrealist in format and wide-ranging in narrative. But the themes of the novel – good and evil, sacrifice, love, despotism, human progress – retain their relevance for audiences and societies across the years and continents. Complicite's 'The Master and Margarita', is also distinctly 21st century.

Simon McBurney's award-winning company employs the most current technology and cutting-edge direction to visually stunning effect in a production that brings to life the dynamism and magic of the novel, without losing any of its poetry.

The Master and Margarita is playing at Barbican until 7 April. For more info: 020 7638 8891; www.barbican.org.uk

Climate Week: Play in a Day

Arcola Theatre, 24 Ashwin Street, Dalston, London E8 3DL

IF solving the problems of climate change was not a big enough challenge in itself, a group of the country's leading writers, directors and actors, took on the added feat of producing a play about the theme in the space of 24 just hours. Staged at Dalston's Arcola Theatre as part of Britain's biggest climate change campaign, Climate Week, 'Play in a Day' (16 March) consisted of five original 15-minute plays addressing creative solutions to global warming. Each team included award-winning writers, directors and celebrity actors alongside fresh talent and the one-off performance took place in the theatre's ultra-sustainable tent venue. The result was an evening of dynamism, wit, poignancy and gripping suspense as the productions tackled issues of planetary life and death (and threatened to sacrifice a goldfish on stage). But despite their theatrical know-how, the cast and crew seemed miffed when it came to solving the bigger quandary of environmental degradation. Far from being moralistic, 'Play in a Day' provided a down-to-earth and humorous take on the problem, echoing the bewilderment, despair and cynicism many of us feel when contemplating issues from empty milk cartons and hot baths to polar bears.

Head of the class

Clockwise from top: Team of the year award for Schools at the Heart; ESOL advice service; Stoke Newington School's most improved school gong; headteachers Cheryl Day, Jacqueline Bruton-Simmonds, Karen Coulthard and Patricia Cardis with their lifetime achievement awards

FOUR headteachers, who have worked in the borough's schools for almost 100 years combined, were among those honoured at Hackney Empire.

Presented by BBC London's arts and culture correspondent, Brenda Emmanus (inset), The Learning Trust's Educators' Awards celebrated individuals and teams that have improved education in the borough.

“To get acknowledged is just amazing, so to win has made my day”

Headteachers Cheryl Day, Clapton Girls' Academy; Jacqueline Bruton-Simmonds, Jubilee Primary; Karen Coulthard, Berger Primary School; and Patricia Cardis, Parkwood Primary, all received the lifetime achievement award.

Catherine Aickin won a lifetime merit award for her work with Wentworth Nursery School. Within her 24 years at the school, Catherine learnt Braille to support a student and produced 3D books.

The school also won awards for sustainability and supporting children with special needs.

The Learning Trust's Steve Herbert picked up the team of the year award for leading Schools at the Heart, a project designed to inspire borough pupils to engage with London 2012. Steve said: “To get acknowledged is just amazing, so to win has made my day.”

In addition, Queensbridge Primary School was named primary school of the year.

The best secondary school gong went to Clapton Girls' Academy, which saw its GCSE results rise dramatically over the last 10 years. Headteacher Cheryl Day said: “We were delighted to get nominated so to get the award as well is fantastic. Thanks to all the team that worked so hard.”

Other winners on the night were The Learning Trust's ESOL advice service for best adult learning provider; Kingsmead School for most creative school; Ann Tayler Children's Centre for best children's centre; Linklater and Clapton Girls' Academy for best business partnership; Arcola Creative Learning for its community organisation; and Millfields Primary School and Stoke Newington School for the most improved primary and secondary schools in the borough, respectively.

UK science teacher of the year

A BRIDGE Academy tutor was named UK science teacher of the year at an annual celebration of maths, science and technology.

Emma Upton-Swift took the top prize at The Big Bang Science Fair in Birmingham after being nominated by colleagues for inspiring students.

The rousing teacher successfully beat five other finalists to take first place, securing £500 and extra classroom resources in the process.

She said she was ‘delighted’ to be recognised for her achievements, adding that judges spoke about the inspirational work teachers do with parents and after-school activities.

The Big Bang Science Fair is aimed at showing young people opportunities available for them within maths, science, technology and engineering.

Ickburgh School consultation

OPINIONS are being sought on the development so far of the new Ickburgh School.

Work on the relocation of the special school is already underway. It will now move to the Kenworthy Road site, currently occupied by Cardinal Pole School, with the E9 school moving to its new building on Morning Lane. The Council, along with the Local Education Partnership and contractor, will be having a drop-in event at Cardinal Pole School for those wishing to see the proposed location and likely size and shape of the new Ickburgh School. There will be an opportunity to ask about the building, the construction period and the project as a whole. Residents and businesses interested in the development are especially welcome.

Work is set to be completed on Ickburgh School in 2014. The consultation takes place at Cardinal Pole School, Kenworthy Road, 6-8pm on 11 April.

Ideas on the development of Ickburgh School are sought

Heard it on the radio

PODCASTS documenting local opinion on the effects of the Olympics Games coming to Hackney were premiered on 2 March, as part of the Council-run Mapping the Change project.

The recordings were the end product of a three-month radio journalism course, run by Ignite Creative at Hackney Community College.

Student Sainthave Ramachandran, 20, said: "It's amazing just how many stories there are to tell in Hackney. This course really helped me with my confidence to go out in search of stories, while learning new skills. A career in radio broadcasting is an option for me now."

The evening also doubled up as a graduation ceremony for the 20 students who completed the media course. Guests, including visitors from the BBC and local radio station, Shoreditch Radio, attended the ceremony.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, presented certificates. He said: "Well done to all of the students involved. Through Mapping the Change the Council has given young people opportunities to learn new skills to help them with their careers."

Mapping the Change is a community heritage project established by Hackney Museum to capture the voices of East London's diverse communities in the run up to London 2012.

Young resident meets HRH at event to tackle unemployment

Lurlene (left), young people from Newham College and HRH

A YOUNG resident met the Prince of Wales at the launch of a new initiative to tackle youth unemployment.

The event, hosted by His Royal Highness (HRH), announced 100 new jobs for unemployed youngsters – who are set to help a further 100,000 young people to find work.

Lurlene McDermott, 23, from Hackney, who is currently on The Prince's Trust Team programme at Newham College, attended the event. Unemployed for four years, Lurlene was desperate to turn her life around. She got in touch with The Prince's Trust and joined the charity's Team programme, a 12-week personal development course to help unemployed young people get into work. She said: "I would love to work in admin, and am hoping to complete an apprenticeship in business administration. The Prince's Trust is really helping me to get my life back on track."

Rosemary Watt-Wyness, regional director for The Prince's Trust in London, added: "The Prince's Trust is committed to helping young people from Hackney gain the skills and confidence they need to get a job. We launched an appeal to increase support for young people in the communities affected by the riots, including Hackney. We will also be working closely with the Council to ensure that all young people in the borough have the positive opportunities they need to keep their lives on track."

Youth charity The Prince's Trust helps change young lives. It works with 13 to 30-year-olds who have struggled at school, have been in care, are long-term unemployed or have been in trouble with the law.

Youth panel chosen for 2012 Games

FIVE young people from Hackney have joined the 2012 Legacy Youth Panel to help shape the future of the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park.

In total 30 new recruits, from the six Olympic host boroughs, will join the 60 existing panel members in their work with the Olympic Park Legacy Company (OPLC)*.

Borough pupils Chey Peterson-Constable, 15; Jesse Williams, 15; Paloma Misir-O'Reilly, 15; Rhasan Brunner, 17; and Catherine Northcott, 15, are all on the new youth panel.

Catherine, who attends Bridge Academy, said: "I wanted to become a member of the panel because I wanted an input into such a big event and the legacy that it will leave.

London isn't just a home for adults but thousands of young people."

Andrew Altman, Chief Executive of the OPLC, added: "The panel means young people can get involved in designing and delivering new facilities for this part of London."

Over the coming months the youngsters will scrutinise the design of the park to ensure plans meet the needs of young people and their communities.

The panel members will also act as ambassadors for the park, visiting schools and youth groups and making sure young people in the host boroughs know what is happening on the site after the Games.

*The OPLC is being transformed into the London Legacy Development Corporation.

Youth panel member Catherine Northcott, 15, attends Bridge Academy

Anyone can take part in the annual Headway East London dance marathon – just make sure you bring your spangly outfits and dancing shoes

Healing power of dance

BIG-hearted boppers are being sought for a charity's epic dance off this month.

Headway East London is putting on its fourth annual dance marathon to raise money and awareness for people with brain injuries.

The charity needs around 500 participants to dance for eight hours, with each hour representing a decade of dance – from jive and ballroom to breakdance, hip hop and belly dance. Last year, £15,000 was raised for the Kingsland Road charity, with money being used to fund therapy and outreach services.

Rosalind Crane, Headway's community fundraiser, said: "We have some amazing club night hosts coming to keep us motivated. This is going to be a feast of footwork fun so register now!"

Ben Hammond, who danced with Headway last year, broke the world record for the longest continuous dance – 136 hours over five days. He'll be shaking his stuff on the dancefloor again this year.

Dance marathons became popular in the US in the 1920s, when competitors danced non-stop for hours.

Headway East London Dance Marathon takes place on 28 April at York Hall, 5 Old Ford Road, E2 9PJ.

Online disability employment advice

A FREE course providing information on disability and employment is now available online.

Inspiring Employment is a seven-week programme that uses video interviews with industry experts and contributors, as well as an online resource centre to share advice about working with disabilities.

The course is developed by resident Martyn

Sibley, who also created a web project with the Council that focused on living independently with a disability.

This latest initiative uses international professionals to share knowledge and give practical guidance.

Core modules include volunteering, on the job, looking for work, career progression and self-employment.

Martyn said: "Inspiring Employment is for people who can work and can achieve amazing things in their careers, but who are finding barriers in their way. This e-course showcases stories of disabled people starting out in their careers, to those in very prosperous jobs already."

The project is suitable for both disabled people and employers.

Dementia unit to help the elderly

Sister Rosemarie Wiggan with the dementia team

HOMERTON hospital has developed a series of services to support older residents with dementia.

The new 56-bed Homerton Elderly Care unit (ECU) comprises doctors, nurses and therapists dedicated to caring and treating elderly patients. It has also launched a dementia team to support patients and staff on the unit. Senior ward sister, Rosemarie Wiggan, said: "We have settled in well in our new surroundings as a new integrated ward service for elderly patients. The dementia team provides support to staff and those patients who are suffering from dementia. They help the patients with eating, take them for walks in the hospital grounds, sit and chat to them in the ward and encourage the patients to take part in activities.

"The team was introduced as a pilot and it has become very much a part of our new set up in the ECU so we shall continue to develop the idea over the coming months."

Breast cancer awareness drive

A NEW website is set to improve breast screening access for women across East London.

Celbreastscreening.org.uk provides daily information about local screening services, as well as the ability to confidentially book an appointment online.

Users can find out more about breast screening, watch NHS staff videos about what to expect and keep track of what's happening locally to raise awareness of breast cancer.

The site, developed by Central and East London Breast Screening Service, aims to increase the survival rates of women with the cancer through earlier diagnosis.

Marie Gabriel, Chair of NHS East London and the City, said: "Local women deserve the best quality care available, as well as the easiest possible access to all of our services.

"We recently received £1.1 million of funding to invest in breast screening services for local women, in addition to initiatives like this new website. We hope that the website will raise awareness about the importance of breast screening, and make it easier for women to take up their breast screening invitation at a time that is convenient to them."

Hackney

Betsy's cottage shortly before it was demolished in c1862. By the early 1860s the land along the lane was being leased out to builders for development. The land that had been dug to find clay to make bricks was now itself being covered over by bricks. By 1864 Love Lane was renamed Norfolk Road.

An undated drawing of Betsy's cottage showing it still standing in open countryside. The fields around the cottage were dug for brick earth. The cottage appeared to stand higher as the fields around it had been dug away to get at the clay.

In 1938 Norfolk Road was renamed Cecilia Road. The name came from Cecilia or Cecily, daughter of Sir Thomas More, who married Giles Heron in 1529. Heron had inherited the estate at Shacklewell built up by his father, Sir John Heron (d1522). Giles Heron was executed for treason in 1540 and the estate sold to Alderman Thomas Rowe in 1566

Dalston's delights

A NEW series of panels are set to go on display at Hackney Archives, charting the history of the area around the Archives' home in the recently opened Dalston CLR James Library.

The exhibition tells the story of how Dalston – once a tiny rural hamlet – developed into a bustling London suburb. The earliest recorded form of the name 'Dalston' is 'Derleston', which may have derived from 'Deorlaf's tun' – 'tun' being the Old English word for a farm.

Agriculture would remain Dalston's main activity for many centuries, until the farmland that fed the Love Lane in 1850 showing Betty 'Betsy' Harcombe's cottage. The lane's name probably came about because it was a secluded part of the parish, ideal for romantic walks by courting couples!

nearby City began to be developed for housing during the 1800s.

The original hamlet lay at what is now the junction of Dalston Lane, Ridley Road and Cecilia Road, where the road made a detour to avoid the marshy area near Pigwell Brook. Cecilia Road used to be known as Norfolk Road, and before that it was Love Lane, a path running across open fields from Dalston to Shacklewell.

On this page is a selection of images from part of the new exhibition, showing the road in different stages of its development from a pathway across open fields to an urban street lined with houses.

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

The Mayor

Jules Pipe

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of the Council who is elected annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Susan Fajana-Thomas.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Hoxton Apprentice

www.hoxtonapprentice.com

MAYA Khurchid, 21, was raised in East London and has always considered herself to be an enthusiastic and pro-active individual. She set her heart on gaining a professional qualification and starting her own career.

Upon leaving school, Maya worked for a jeweller as a cashier and sales assistant before volunteering with the NSPCC's Street Matters Project, where she provided administrative and client support. From here, Maya became involved with Nia Project, a charity providing support for women and children who have suffered domestic abuse, where she led group discussions with young people. Most recently, Maya worked as a telephone fundraiser.

Passionate about customer service, Maya discovered Hoxton Apprentice through Job Centre Plus, and attended an interview with Training for Life. She started volunteering at the restaurant in November last year, and was offered a paid apprenticeship in January.

Talking about her time on the programme, Maya says: "I'm loving my time at Hoxton – the team is great and I'm gaining more confidence every day. I am now learning, doing a job I enjoy and I'm really optimistic about the future!"

Pear tart with vanilla ice cream

Serves 6

Preparation time
10 mins

Cooling time
30 mins

Ingredients

- 4 pears, cored and thinly sliced
- 3 tbsp white sugar
- 30g butter
- 1 packet sweet shortcrust pastry

Method

- Preheat the oven to 180°C/350°F/gas 4.
- Roll out the pastry and draw two circles with a knife, using a nine-inch pan as a guide. Remove the excess.

- Line the pan with one layer of pastry.
- Arrange the pear slices in layers on top of the pastry, sprinkling sugar between each layer. Place small pieces of butter all over the top layer.
- Transfer to the oven and bake for 30 minutes, or until the filling is cooked through.
- Serve with vanilla ice cream

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house.

Six-month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain a NVQ in Hospitality. Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people. If you would like to offer an apprentice a job, or become an apprentice yourself, call Ben Anderson on: 020 7749 2800.

Voluntary sector grants programme

THE Council is consulting with the Voluntary and Community Sector (VCS) to review Hackney's Voluntary Sector Grants Programme.

Changes are being proposed to the way that the grants programme is being administered. The proposals will allow for more VCS organisations to be funded from the grant budget and should help to achieve better outcomes for residents.

Some consultation has already taken place with key stakeholders from the VCS. The Council is now consulting on the proposed changes to the programme which would be introduced in 2013/14.

The consultation will run until 14 May. Have your say on the proposals by visiting: www.hackney.gov.uk/consultation; or email: communitypartnerships@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 2252. Written views can also be sent to: Freepost LON 18819, Consultation Team, Hackney, Mare Street, London, E8 1EA.

Space and Place Shaping Plan for Shoreditch (SPSPS)

THE Council would like to hear the views of those who live, work and visit

Shoreditch, as part of the development of a Space and Place Shaping plan for Shoreditch (SPSPS).

The SPSPS will set out proposals for area-wide improvements to the public realm in the area. These improvements are hoped to balance the needs of vehicles pedestrians and cyclists.

To have your say on the SPSPS, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/consultation; write to: SPSPS Consultation, Freepost LON18819, Room 82, Hackney Town Hall, London, E8 1EA by 27 April; or attend a drop in event on 3 April, 5pm to 7pm at 81 Great Eastern Street, EC2A 3HU. For more information, email: daniel.nelson@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 3468.

LICENSING

Notice is given that Thomas Melody has applied to the Council of the London Borough of Hackney for a: Sexual Entertainment Venue Licence for the premises at Ye Olde Axe, 69 Hackney Road, London, E2 8ET on the following date 27th March 2012.

Anyone wishing to oppose this application must give notice in writing to the Licensing Service, Hackney Service Centre, Hackney Council, 1 Hillman Street, London E8 1DY within TWENTY EIGHT DAYS from the date the application was made, the last date being 24th April 2012, specifying the grounds or reasons of any objection.

Persons objecting to the grant of a licence will be invited to attend a hearing before the Council's Licensing Sub-committee, to support their case. Where objections are received, applicants will be advised of the general terms of the objection, in order that they have the opportunity to address the issues raised. The Council will not disclose an objector's details, without the consent of that person.

Notice is given that Sivaharan Kandiah of Ground Floor, 64 Upper Clapton Road, London E5 9JP has applied to Hackney Borough Council to grant a New Premises Licence at Ground Floor, 64 Upper Clapton Road, London E5 9JP in order that the following hours to be granted Monday to Sunday 5.00am to 11.00pm.

Hackney Borough Council Licensing Register is kept at the office of Licensing Service at Hackney Service Centre, Hackney Council, 1 Hillman Street, London E8 1DY where the details of the application may be inspected. The office hours are Monday – Friday 9.00am to 5.00pm.

Any representations against the application must be made in writing and received by the Licensing Service at the above address by no later than Friday 27 April 2012.

Residents and businesses in the vicinity of the premises or bodies representing such residents or businesses may make representations. The grounds on which representations may be made are restricted to the licensing objectives of the prevention of crime and disorder, public safety, the prevention of public nuisance and the protection of children from harm. Copies of all representations will be sent to the applicant.

Persons making representations will have to appear at the Council's Licensing Sub Committee.

Note: It is an offence liable on conviction to a fine up to £5,000.00 for an application to knowingly or recklessly make a false statement in connection with the application.
